CHAPTER XIII.
Mr. Wilson's singular notions about party platforms and campaign strategy.

Woodrow Wilson did not feel bound by party platforms in the making of which he had no part. Certain principles of policy appealed to him as worthy of emphasis but knowing the hasty manner in which platforms were drafted and perfunctorily adopted he construed each document to be really a series of suggestions and not a program of action. In his formal speech accepting the nomination in 1912, he revealed that interpretation but its significance did not become apparent until Mr. Wilson as president developed his legislative program. He wrote practically all of the legislative platform himself and felt privileged to do so as leader of the democratic party.

Two planks on the 1912 platform Mr. Wilson inserted during the campaign. One was that which pledged the party to a constitutional amendment restricting a president of the United States to a single term and the other that which upheld the action of the democrats in enacting a law exempting American vessels from payment of Panama Canal tolls. Mr. Wilson believed that the discussion of the one term plank was none of his affair because if the party chose it could repeal that plank in a subsequent convention. It was only binding upon party in convention assembled and not upon individuals who inevitably would be compelled to accept the party's decision. The democratic party in 1912 by nominating for a second term the man who in the judgment of the delegates had made a worthy record in a single term. Similarly Mr. Wilson held that the 1912 plank

Following the testimony of several experts, the attorneys for the Edgewater Electric Co., plaintiff in the $250,000 fire damage suit against the Janesville Electric company, closed its case Wednesday.

There was a good laugh when Attorney Otto Gredtich, counsel for the defense, interrupted Frank A. Vaughn, testifying for the plaintiff. Vaughn was asked regarding the danger of the line in cutting the high tension line had the power broken on.

"The danger was slight, with dry rubber gloves, considering the pole was dry, the ground dry, the night dry—

"All this in a dry town?" interrupted Gredtich.

"Yes, in a dry town," smiled the witness.

Attorney H. O. Thomas for the plaintiff asked one hypothetical question which took six minutes and 10 seconds to ask.

The question, taken down by Court Reporter Francis Grant, covered several pages in shorthand. The answer was the one word "No."

PART PLAYED BY
DAUGHERTY FRIEND
SUBJECT OF QUIZ

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Washington—The Daugherty investigation was to be opened at 4 p. m. today, under a decision reached today by the special senate committee.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Washington—The part played in department of justice affairs by Jesse Smith, friend of Attorney General Daugherty, who committed suicide a year ago in Mr. Daugherty's apartment here, will be inquired into in detail in the senate Daugherty investigation. Senator Wheeler, democrat of Montana, preparing the case for the committee, announced that all telegrams sent to and received by Smith at Columbus, Ohio, after the election of President Harding had been subpoenaed.

The senator said the reported influence of oil interest in the Mexican revolution, planned for inquiry at the opening session, probably would give way to some other unrelated subject.

Another subpoena issued was for Will R. A. Hayes, manager of the Underberg company, Columbus, O., to appear immediately and bring certain documents. A item of that name is a stock brokerage house which was formerly a Washington branch office.

The senate committee investigating the administration of Attorney General Daugherty will open its hearings late this afternoon, and will hear as the first witness Mrs. Roxie Smith of Columbus, O., divorced wife of the late Jesse W. Smith.

IS QUESTIONED BY OIL COMMITTEE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Washington—Congressional investigation of criminal charges laid to have been developed before a Chicago grand jury against two representatives was ordered today by the house.

By a viva voce vote, a resolution offered by Representative Garrett, the democratic leader, to create a special house committee to conduct an investigation of the charges, was adopted.

In an effort to head off a vote on the Garrett resolution, Representative Longworth, republican, Ohio, proposed that it be referred to the rules committee, but his motion was lost on a record vote, 127 to 135.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Washington—Edward B. McLean told the oil committee today that he had given no misleading information about the celebrated $100,000 loan because he trusted and desired to help his friend, Albert B. Fall.

The publisher insisted his second story about the loan, told to Senator Walsh in January at Palm Beach, was correct. He said he had loaned the former secretary $100,000 in checks for a ranch enterprise, but that the checks were returned to him un cashed.

His previous assertion that the loan was made in cash, he said, was made at Fall's request, but had nothing to do with oil. He said he had himself had nothing to do with any oil companies and knew nothing about the Fall oil policies except what he had read in the newspapers.

Asked about the code messages exchanged between Washington and his cottage at Palm Beach, he was unable to decipher or explain many of them. He said William J. Barker had given one of his employees a department of justice code, but that he himself never had coded a message.

He became a secret agent of the justice department, he continued, shortly after the beginning of the Harding administration, largely because the official badge would make it easier for him to get through police houses when traveling with the president.

He identified the attorney general as the author of the message ascribing his father's death to Daugherty's "wrong for me," even if he had been asked.

Added New Chairman.
The resignation of Senator Tenroot, republican, Wisconsin, as chairman of the committee, is expected to have no effect on the investigation, which is practically under the direction of Senator Walsh, democrat of Montana. A republican member of the committee, who is identified with the La Follette group, will be named formally to succeed Senator Tenroot by the republican leadership.

ONE THIRD DAIRY COWS ARE BURDEN TO U. S. FARMERS

"It will take far more than co-operative marketing to bring success to the dairyman's problem," said A. J. Glover, editor of Hoard's Dairyman, believes that "if one-third of the dairy cows in this country were disposed of and the other two-thirds given the proper attention, the profits of dairying would be increased many-fold."

"We have examples that co-operative marketing has been the means of increasing the farmer's return and all the efforts put forth to get farmers organized into co-operative marketing organizations have been worth all their effort and cost," he said that co-operative marketing is the entire solution of the farmer's ills is to lead into a blind alley.

"The successful dairy farmer never forgets that efficient production offers almost unlimited opportunities for increasing his profits."

"It is important, if we are to solve the dairyman's problem, to get a true perspective of the relative value of the things proposed to correct the ills of agriculture."

LEVIANS HAS PRAISE FOR TOBACCO POOL

Stoughton—The success of the Northern Wisconsin Tobacco Pool and co-operative marketing in general is the largest step taken in recent years toward solution of agricultural prob-lems, State Treasurer Solomon Levi-an declared in an address here re-cently.

"The success of the tobacco pool points the way to co-operative market-ing of other farm products," the state treasurer said. "It has enabled the tobacco farmer to demand and get a fair price for his crop. By radio, recently, I heard of the success of ap-plying tobacco in the south. It was the Kentucky Pool, made famous by the night riding history. Years ago Kentucky tobacco growers dis-satisfied with the price they were getting organized themselves into the night riders and burned the sheds and crops of the farmers who would not break with the pool. Today, these same farmers have come to realize that, only through co-operation can the tobacco farmers expect to get a fair price."

"When the day comes that the farm-ers are organized and can, through their co-operative marketing bodies, demand a fair price for their corn, potatoes, hogs and other products, they will come into their own."

Much Land Needs Lime

Time is absolutely necessary to grow these plants. In fact, lime is the foundation on which the successful farmer must build his fertility opera-tions. At least 80 per cent of Wis-consin farm-land must have lime and without lime these farms cannot be operated successfully. In some por-tions of Wisconsin today it is diffi-cult to secure lime fast enough to supply the demand. There is an ex-ceptional demand for this product. Waupaca and Portage counties have recently installed five mari exca-vators. Waushara county has four. Adams county, one. Besides these counties, many other counties are shoveling lime from low areas in the belt near creek beds from marshes and near lakes. In La Crosse county the county road crushing machines are taking the lime material and deliv-ering it to farmers at a reasonable cost. The principal difficulty in La Crosse county seems to be to secure sufficient lime to supply the demand.

Could Increase Profits

Wisconsin statistics show that 27 per cent of our land is growing out, a crop which is not very profitable. An additional 11 per cent is in other grain, 28 per cent in clover and tim-othy, which is largely timothy, 22 per cent in corn, 5.1 per cent in miscella-neous crops, and only 7 per cent in legume crops. The percentage of leg-ume crops, which are really the most profitable, is small because of a lack of lime in the soil. By using lime we can increase and should increase the percentage of these crops. It is recom-mended that 25 to 35 per cent. If Wisconsin farmers will do this they will find their soils, crops and farms more profitable.

The presence or addition of lime to the soil insures—first, an increased growth of legumes, such as alfalfa, clover, and soy beans; second, the ad-dition of valuable nitrogen through the growth of legume crops; third, adequate supply of humus; fourth, increased soil fertility; fifth, insures against winter killing of legume crops; sixth, a good rotation of crops; seventh, better cultivated crops fol-lowing legumes; eighth, the profitable products of livestock; ninth, a profit-able income off the farm.

THIRD PARTY TO CONVENE JUNE 17

National Convention Called; May Back La Follette for President.

St. Paul—A national convention to select candidates for president and vice president on a third party ticket will be held in Minneapolis June 17 as the result of a call issued yester-day as a meeting here of representa-tives of 13 organizations from eight states.

The farmer-labor party was prom-ently represented at the gathering, which extended invitations to all farmer and labor political organiza-tions to attend the national confer-ence.

While there was no one officially endorsed as a presidential candidate, the name of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin was mentioned as a possibility in this connection.

The national conference originally was suggested for May 30, but it was decided on the later date so it would come after the national republican convention at Cleveland.

Frank Rikert, Who Left Illinois for California in Covered Wagon in 1864, Wouldn't Take $100 for Bottle of Tan-lac.

Frank Rikert, well-known resident of North Sacramento, Cal., who came to the state from Illinois in a covered wagon in 1864, along with other hardy pioneers, recently ac-quired a bottle of Tanlac, which he had just purchased, to a friend at his home and remarked: "If I thought this was the last bottle of Tanlac I would be able to buy. I wouldn't take one hundred dollars for it," thus proving the high value-tion he places on the famous treat-ment.

"I believe Tanlac really saved my life when I took it after the flu about a year ago," continued Mr. Rikert, "for the attack left me 20 pounds off in weight and unable to turn over in my bed without assis-tance. I tell you, I thought my time had surely come."

"But, thanks to my wife's insis-tence, I kept on taking Tanlac till I was able to do all my work again, had back all my lost weight, and I've been feeling years younger ever since. I'm always telling my friends about Tanlac, and can't say too much for it."

CIVIC PRIDE ON TRIAL IN DRIVE

Twilight Club Discusses Hotel Campaign—Favor Development of Riverside.

Janesville's civic pride is on trial. Such was the verdict among members of the Twilight club meeting Tuesday night in the Janesville Y. M. C. A. when in addition to the address by John Sloan, Chicago, there were discussions on the hotel and municipal park projects.

Pointing out that no other municipal feature was as important as a hotel for the convenience, reputation and comfort of those who to a large degree, establish the merit of the city to the outside world, speakers called for more action. Knowing that the wealth of Janesville was such as to easily raise the needed $100,000, the hotel subscription was put squarely up as a civic issue. Disregarding the merit of the project for the time being, speakers declared the investment worth-while for "the improvement of Janesville."

New Tourist Camp

Increasing tourist travel from the outside to Wisconsin's playground of the lake sections is being sought through tourist camps. Good roads, including motorable trails, are the transportation situation and modes of recreation of the American public.

The necessity of adequately providing for this increasing traffic in the form of an improved tourist camp and the new hotel was pointed out by numerous speakers.

Realizing this increase in traffic, the campaign has now reached a point where we either raise the money or not have the hotel," declared W. H. Dougherty.

Riverside park, acquired by the city for a municipal park, was discussed. Maps were furnished by the Gazette and between the park and hotel issue there were many speakers endorsing both improvements.

Instead of one large appropriation, several club members recommended related appropriations year after year for the development of the new property to be of full value to the public.

"It is the view of the present administration that there should be constructive development of the property," declared City Manager Henry Fraser. "An appropriation of $5,000 has been passed, part of which will be used for the building of a highway and entrance into the park."

Judge Charles E. Field urged the value of having a better tourist camp for advertising the city and suggested the new park be made the camp. This was generally favored by other speakers. The necessity of supervision of both park and camp was discussed.

Park Has Value

"The old council in buying the tract believed the park to be valuable property," declared T. E. Welsh, "if we do not believe a bond issue would be the time for the improvement of the property."

"There is a growing demand for supervised play for both minors and adults," stated Frank Smith, superintendent of schools. "When the playground work was turned over to the board of education, this board realized the responsibility to the city."

It was pointed out that 60,000 people were at the playgrounds and swimming beaches last summer.

The possibilities of sport development for both children and adults at the new park were enumerated by Frank Sinclair, sports editor of the Gazette. The land provides opportunity for a golf course, baseball, tennis, swimming and playground for the minors.

"The bonded degree civic spirit depends on the sport and recreational facilities of a city," declared Sinclair. "A public golf links is needed in Janesville."

"Good clean sports will have a marked tendency to better sell Janesville to Janesville," closed the speaker.

Harry Haggart, presided during the meeting and as a final word, predicted that the hotel drive would succeed by reason of renewed vigor.

SLOAN PREDICTS CHANGES IN CITIES

Speaker Paints Vision of Future Improvements in Traffic, Business.

Decentralization of population and industry with the distribution of both along the lines of transportation, and adjustment of conditions to meet the growing motor traffic, were forecast by John Sloan, Chicago, president of the Wisconsin Grants company and president of the Board of Local Improvements of Chicago, speaking before the Twilight club at the Y. M. C. A. here Tuesday night.

Mr. Sloan brought a vision of metropolitan centers improved to meet the congestion of traffic and business. He told of elevated sidewalks, subways, widened streets and the changing of the business districts so as not to concentrate particular trades such as the commission business on the notorious Water street district in Chicago.

Municipal development along not only civic lines, but also cultural and recreational, was outlined.

"The difficulty is that such improvements build for out of the public fund are almost confessional in their cost," explained Sloan. "Bond issues are but deferred liabilities and I am of the opinion the people will, in the future, exercise more care and study before authorizing a bond issue for any great project."

Speaking of the deep waterway project, the speaker predicted the time when ships of every nation would be docking in Chicago and other lake Michigan ports. Harbor improvements costing millions are being made to make it possible for ocean steamers to reach inland ports and docks.

"The entire middle west will suffer unless the advantages of this great traffic are made available at once," it was declared.

"There is no state having greater possibilities than Wisconsin," continued the Chicago man, well versed in the resources of the Badger commonwealth. "Wisconsin has the natural material, the rheated soil and undeveloped opportunities unexcelled in America. For some reason the distant grass always looks the greenest. However, it is not flattering when about 50 percent of your voting population neglects to vote. With half of the people staying away from the polls and showing no active interest in elections, as to who will run the business of government is a little wonder we have such political and industrial unrest."

Muscle Shoals.

When the armistice was signed, the United States was in the middle of a construction job at the falls of the Tennessee river, known as Muscle Shoals, in Alabama, wherein a plant with an enormous hydro-electric power was being built on a gigantic scale, with the purpose of taking nitrates from the air for the making of explosives. It was one of the big deals of the war, fathered by Senator Shields, of Tennessee, and if the war had lasted for six or seven years more might have been available for production of nitrates. Back of it was the southern lobby which had the saddle and received several billions of dollars from the government for the establishment of camps and plants in the south. It was the golden age of the southern politician—this administration of Mr. Wilson and the things that happened under the color of emergency for war purposes, make Tenot Dome a silly piece of petty larceny—the stealing of a stick of candy from a grocery store. And so we spent a hundred million dollars putting the plant in shape for a vague purpose. It was built as though the war might last forever or if not that it was a plain conspiracy to turn the government investment over to private hydro electric corporations already doing business in that vicinity and anxious to add the power of the Tennessee river at Muscle Shoals to the plants in operation. Most of the opposition to the Ford proposal has come from these interests and the fertilizer manufacturers.

In giving it to Mr. Ford the government has unfolded an elephant. True, Mr. Ford has millions and Muscle Shoals might have been handed over to some poor man who needed the change. But there is some merit in the Ford proposal and one of the most important is that the government has no other place to put the plant. To close it up, to sell it at the salvage price which have been received for war material and other war plants would have been wicked and add to the loss already sustained by the people in this disposal of plants.

What was the government going to do in the matter? That was the serious question. The Alabama Power company, a great corporation, was a bidder. There were other bidders who wanted the power plant for the purpose generally of selling power. Whatever was done with Muscle Shoals would invite criticism. The government plainly could not operate the plant. It is not equipped for business either of making fertilizer or selling white power. If ever there was a Jonah on a free government it was the Muscle Shoals plant. Objectors there are and a plenty, but the salient point is that none of them had anything better to offer than the proposal of Mr. Ford. The latter certainly was looking for his millions. We sold other plants, powder plants, costing way up into the same figure as Muscle Shoals, for about nine millions of dollars and less. The Wilson war administration sold war material costing a billion or so for a few millions of dollars. Muscle Shoals is a part of the Wilson legacy and whatever the government gets out of it is so much velvet.

The senate may defeat the bill granting the Muscle Shoals plant to Mr. Ford. Behind the movement was a divided republican membership in the house and a divided democratic minority. But behind the Ford offer was also the farm bloc. Wisconsin was not one of the states voting for the Ford bill. Nelson, of Madison, alone remembered that the farmers were for it. Cooper of this district and the others voted against the farmers.

Mr. Ford may have made a good bargain. He may have laid the foundation for several more millions to add to his own already produced. He has to make fertilizer and to pay a small sum for the use of the great plant belonging to a government which has no use for it. It was the fact that fertilizer could be made here and that Mr. Ford was willing to make fertilizer that gave the Ford proposal any strength. As it is, Mr. Ford will pay the government 4 per cent on the investment and $35,000 a year additional, agreeable to make 40,000 tons of nitrate for fertilizer which he is to sell to farmers at a profit not to exceed 8 per cent.

In view of all the considerations we believe the government has made a good bargain. Opposed to Mr. Ford was every great corporate interest east and in the middle west and south. Mr. Coolidge was brave enough and bold enough to say that we should leave the plants. We have started the legislation and it is not a partisan vote by which it has been done. We carry no brief for Mr. Ford. He is looking for the dollars he can make. But as between Ford and the millionaire junk dealers who have bought our other war elephants, and have started out to make money from these disastrous investments by the government, we prefer Mr. Ford. We believe that Mr. Ford has a streak of inherent honesty at least, while examination of the past shows that others who have dealt in war mistakes, are honest because we happen to have penitentiaries and prisons which are their moral guides and incentives to straight dealing.

The Resignation of Senator Lenroot

There will be little surprise in the resignation of Senator Lenroot from the chairmanship of the committee on Public Lands. This committee has a definite work to do and much real legislation to care for. But its time has been spent in the investigation of the oil leases and it has considered

RUM SMUGGLING UNCHECKED

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—Rum smugglers along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts are virtually unhampered in their operations despite all the effort made by the authorities to hold them in check. Whatever prohibition enthusiasts may say, this is the report of the responsible heads of the Coast Guard Service to congress.

Liquor is being brought into the United States through Atlantic and Gulf ports at the rate of at least 100,000 cases a month. In twenty-two months the coast guard service has been able to capture only the equivalent of 31,000 cases and to cause to be let into the country an additional amount estimated at 20,000 cases, in all barely half of one month's total that is smuggled in.

And that the business of whiskey running is increasing rapidly is indicated by the fact that fifty-six new vessels have entered the trade since Oct. 1 of last year and six during the last week of February. Commander C. S. Root of the coast guards, told the house committee on appropriations that "the enemy," as the smugglers are known to the service, now has a high sea force consisting of 34 steamers and 132 sailing vessels, ranging in size from 357 tons to 3,000 tons and some of them capable of speeds up to nineteen knots. Most of these vessels fly the flag of foreign nations.

For establishing contacts with the shore the enemy has an auxiliary fleet of several hundred gasoline-driven craft of various sizes, about a third of which are good for a speed of twenty-two knots. Occasionally he has used airplanes for this work during the past year.

"The mission of the enemy is to make money," said Commander Root. "His operations are carried on by a force limited only by opportunities to use it. His legal and technical advisors are persons of the highest skill, unhampered by principles of any kind. He maintains a bribery fund and has a shore organization for obtaining supplies, marketing contraband, and for the collection and dissemination of intelligence.

"Intelligence is transmitted between his forces aloft and ashore by dispatches in codes and ciphers, and by couriers who are well protected by necessary. Relations between New York and Europe is not believed to be complete, but is fairly well established. The so-called 'Run Row' of New York is maintained ostensibly as a good business proposition, but principally as a diversion to hold to that point the attention of as many of the coast guard vessels as possible."

Information laid before the house committee shows that there is an international syndicate with a fleet of more than 100 steamships, with headquarters in New York, as its base, bringing in its supplies of illicit liquor from St. Pierre, Miquelon, and the Bahamas. The largest ships of the syndicate are consigned to New York, where the smugglers say there is an ever-increasing market, and one in which the supply will never catch up with the demand.

The committee's attention has also been called to the operations of English companies which have sold stock or shares to the public, advertising with the most frank candor that they are engaged in smuggling liquor to the United States and promising dividends of at least 20 per cent every 60 or 90 days.

These English companies insist that they are doing nothing unlawful. They do not attempt to bring liquor into the United States.

They simply ferry it across the Atlantic and wait for their customers outside the three-mile, or even the twelve-mile, limit on this side. They are not in the business of selling liquor to the public who buy contraband do with it. Their sole concern is in getting the liquor over where they know there is an immediate market for it on a spot cash basis at prices insuring immense profits.

It is estimated that approximately 50,000 cases a month have been shipped from northern Europe for a period of more than two years. During the last three months of last year about 65,000 cases a month were shipped from Scotland and Antwerp, and as this coast guard service is now engaged in smuggling liquor to the United States, it is estimated that the trade now runs to 50,000 cases every 30 days. Hence it is obvious that the English companies are not exaggerating the possible profits to be derived from the business.

If the coast guard service is to be able to cope with the smugglers congress must provide more money for more ships, more men and more equipment. An appropriation of some $14,000,000 was asked for the work. This would provide for the procurement from the navy of twenty torpedo boat destroyers to be conditioned and equipped at a cost of $2,000,000; similar transfer of two mine sweepers, the conditioning and equipment of which would cost $110,000; and the building of 223 cabin cruiser-type motor boats at a cost of $8,362,500 and 100 Seabright dory type motor boats at a cost of $800,000. The equipment of these new vessels would cost almost a million dollars more.

The coast guard, to carry through its program, will require 75 commissioned officers, 261 warrant officers and 2,025 enlisted men. Nineteen life-saving stations now on the inactive list will be opened and 24 section bases organized for supervising the operation of the vessels engaged in the prevention of liquor smuggling. Three receiving stations will be established, also, for the equipment and training of recruits.

A bill is under consideration authorizing the transfer of the destroyers from the navy, but it is claimed that by its provisions the whole United States navy could be turned over to the coast guard for prohibition enforcement, inasmuch as the measure does not stipulate a certain number of vessels to be so transferred, but merely says such ships as may be needed.

Coast guard officers intimate that the run runners can be put out of business if orders are ever issued to sink every vessel that does not obey the command to lay to.

Members of congress are insistent upon being informed whether the $14,000,000 appropriation is all that will be needed to stop smuggling or if similar or even larger amounts will be asked from year to year. As yet no definite assurances have been given on that point.

Little else for months. At the present time action of the committee has been given over to the most inconsequential matters in oil investigation—fragments and broken pieces. The president of the United States has named two attorneys to take up the legal aspects of the case and attempt to have the leases canceled. The committee at this time, it would seem, should turn over what evidence it has to a federal grand jury and let the constituted authorities take care of the Fall, McLean and Doherty connections. Another committee is investigating Mr. Daugherty. Senator Lenroot has not acted while any of these matters of importance were on before the committee on public lands.

The statement of the senator that he is ill is borne out by persons recently visiting him and that is reason enough. But the work of the investigating committee for the past two weeks has been so absurdly plain as a political drive to get some one involved outside those known to have participated in the oil leases that the people have grown disgusted and fed up on the investigation. With the president on the job and the attorneys investigating the validity of the leases together with all the testimony as to any conspiracy or action tending toward criminality, the investigation is in safe hands and the interests of the public are being cared for thoroughly.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE JOB.

Take this, my boy, and remember it long. Though move it may strike you as funny. A job with a chance to improve and advance is better than one that pays money.

Take a hint from an old man who's traveled the way.

Just leave to his counsel a minute. There's a job that may pay you five dollars a day. But that's all there will ever be in it.

Don't look at the cash as so many boys do. Take a look at the long years before you. See how much you can learn, not how much you can earn.

And the place which the future has for you.

Can you rise from the post where they'd have you begin? How far will this humble job take you? These are questions to ask. They pay well for the task.

But what sort of a man will it make you?

Oh, many a boy has begun with a rush. And has grabbed for a man's wages blindly. Now he sticks at a man at the spot he began, And thinks life has used him unkindly.

So look for a job with a future ahead. Seek a chance to grow greater and greater. Seek a place where you know as you work you will grow.

And the money will come to you later. (Copyright, 1924, by Edgar A. Guest)

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1924.

Although Neptune is friendly, according to astrology, this is read as rather an unfavorable day. Jupiter and Venus are both adverse.

It is a time that should be lucky for starting on journeys and making definite changes, especially where chemists, painters, prospectors, oil producers and dealers in soft drinks are concerned.

The Moon in Gemini enters Cancer late today, its adverse aspect reaching its maximum strength about 9 o'clock in the morning. The day should be good for concentrating and study, making for effort toward gaining peace and self control.

There should be fair luck for those who sell, but most business transactions are subject to unfavorable influences today.

It is not a lucky wedding day, for Venus troys on love affairs while this configuration prevails.

There is today a dubious sign not good for bonds, speculative stocks and loans. Much illness of severe nature affecting the blood, liver and bladder may be prevalent at this time.

The aspect is supposed to preage sensational news concerning our foreign relations. Floods, earthquakes and mining disasters certainly are indicated by the planetary government.

One of the sinister influences at this time is read as denoting intrigue in politics, underhand schemes and changes in personal loyalty.

Persons whose birthdate it is should pursue the most even-going routine during the coming year. Speculation or change probably would be most unwise.

SCHOOL LUNCH

An organization serving lunches to undernourished school children seeks a proper menu. There is a common fallacy that malnutrition is mainly a matter of feeding. Faults of diet are responsible for comparatively few of the cases of malnutrition in school children. Unremedied physical defects, foul air in the schoolroom, the practice of keeping pupils after school on various projects—such as in some badly administered schools still tolerated by recent parents, lack of home control by the same class of parents, over-fatigue by so-called "home work"—the gang of poor teaching, and neglect of physical education in the school—these are some of the common causes of malnutrition in school children, on which feeding cannot correct.

Malnutrition is often found in a vicious circle. The bad air, long hours of confinement and repression enforced upon the child by the malnourished teacher and the gang of neglecting the children of their recess, the excessive amount of "homework" which teachers of that temperament give to the child, the whole combined with the physical circumstances breaks down the child's health and vigor and impairs his mental alertness or capacity to learn, and this, in turn, spurs the school authorities on to more "home work" more repression, since the child is dull, don't you see, and the poor child just naturally "advances backward."

A school lunch should include a bowl of some thick hot soup with crackers or bread, a large glass of milk and some fruit or list of sweets. For children over 12 a cup of cocoa may be substituted for the milk if desired. Any kind of sandwiches may be included in the lunch in place of the soup.

In school, of all places, since one purpose of the lunch is to educate, suitable provision should be made for every pupil to wash his hands before eating. In some of our school cafeterias the hygienic conditions are pretty bad and might well merit the attention of the sanitary police—if they had any such police. Even the handling of the food is far from clean and in such a place it is unnecessary to demonstrate dangerous or insanitary ways or methods of food handling. Milk should be served in the original bottle with the cap intact, and drunk through straws in a cafeteria. The persons handling the food or dishes should be compelled to wear clean aprons and they should be required to undergo at least an annual examination by the school physician or the health authorities, as a precaution against the risk of contagious "carrier."

Children under 12 who are underweight, and who need better feeding, should have a lunch in the middle of the afternoon. Of course these lunches should be lighter—say, a glass of milk and a cracker or two at 10 o'clock, regular lunch at 12 o'clock, an orange or an apple or other fresh fruit perhaps with a cookie at 3 o'clock. Often a child will gain faster on five light meals than on three heavy ones.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Answer—Writing. After working for seven years at a job making carbon copy reports with a hand pencil, I have developed well my hand and it does not bother me only when I write. What is the best way to cure it? (D. J. E.)

Answer—Abuse of the writing function. I have used the finger motion instead of the muscle movement, and added to the strain by bearing down with the pencil. Use typewriter all along. Prolonged rest—six months—of hand from writing machine. Go work on a farm for a while. Sometimes heat treatment is plaster cast or other immobilization for arm. Practice left-hand writing. Muscle movement only.

N. B. What are some of the causes of nervous breakdown? Is it sometimes caused by hemorrhage of the brain which is known as a stroke? (M. E. E.)

Answer—Nervous breakdown is just an English term. How to become a Nurse. 1. What kind of education must one have to become a graduate nurse? 2. How must a different kind of nurses are there? 3. How old must one be before they will be accepted as a nurse? 4. How long must one have a physical examination? 5. Must they have a recommendation? 6. How long must one wait before one can become a nurse? 7. How long must one wait before one can become a nurse? (V. C.)

Answer—1. Training schools of the better kind require that applicants shall have completed a grammar school course, though some of the poorer schools require graduation from high school—that is, when they can get enough pupils so qualified. 2. But the thing is, namely, that the state, registered nurses, second, qualified nurses, who have had sufficient instruction in the hospital, are in general to serve both in private practice and in hospitals that great class of people who cannot afford the expense of registered nurses and who are ill and tired, and who are not able to do the work of the nurses who have no such approved instruction but help both with the homework and the hospital work. 3. Yes, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100.

The bureau cannot give advice on legal, medical and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor to undertake extensive research on any subject. Write your question concisely and briefly and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. Full name and address. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. Which is more elastic, steel or iron? W. C. W.

A. The bureau of standards says that steel when stressed beyond its elastic limit and released does not immediately return to its original position. Within certain limits, however, a good steel spring will give no permanent deformation. The products of the pressure and volume being constant for a wide range of pressure, provided the temperature is kept uniform.

Q. What is a moat? D. N. P.

A. The moat was a wingless bird found in New Zealand, somewhat like a chicken in appearance. It varied from the size of a turkey to birds 13 feet in height. They were edible and their extermination more than 50 years ago is probably due to the fact that it was the meaning of "inferior."

Q. What is the meaning of "inferior"? V. I. C.

A. This word, which is used as a Sunday school class name, is a translation of the Greek word meaning "inferior." It is used in Chronicles 20:25.

Q. Were annuities known before life insurance was issued? C. M. M.

A. Annuities are much older. Possibly they were known to the Assyrians and Babylonians. The first record of an annuity is in Rome in 40 B. C.

Q. Do snakes charm their prey in order to catch it? R. M. C.

A. The popular belief in the power of poisonous snakes to charm their prey into a state of helplessness has no foundation. It is said, however, that under the influence of excitement the birds or small mammals are forced to surrender and are then eaten and in this state they venture too near only to be hit by the hitherto almost motionless snake whose only sign of life consisted in the following of the prey's efforts with the staring eyes and the incessant darting out and in of the rapid tongue.

Q. Of what is the Australian "bush" composed? M. P. M.

A. The bush in Australia consists of thickets of the paper bark tree.

COBBAN DEMANDS SPECIFIC CHARGES

Wants State Department Records Accessible for Preparing Reply.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Madison — A request that all charges against him be made specific and that records of the state department be made accessible in preparing his answer to the charges was made by Alex J. Cobban, dismissed automobile registration clerk, on Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman today.

"Your action with reference to my removal from office and the abolishing of the position of registration clerk and your notice to me, under date of Feb. 27, are contrary to and not in accordance with chapter 16, of the statutes of this state, governing civil service employment," a letter sent to Mr. Zimmerman by Mr. Cobban declares.

Wants All Reasons.
The letter declares that Secretary Zimmerman's dismissal notice states that "one of the reasons for dismissal are given and requests that all reasons be set forth. Regarding the charges that Mr. Cobban sold motor vehicles, it is stated that Mr. Zimmerman give names of persons with whom the agreement was made and the nature and amount of the alleged consideration for such list. Information of specific motors and vehicles which are alleged to have been underestimated and from whom short fees were accepted, was asked. The letter stated, in order that Mr. Cobban may prepare answer to the letter filed with the civil service commission by Secretary Zimmerman. Mr. Zimmerman is expected to give specific information on the charges within a few days.

Dismissed March 1.
Cobban was dismissed on March 1, for alleged insubordination, inefficiency and issuing of motor vehicle licenses contrary to the motor vehicle act passed by the legislature. His dismissal resulted in several other changes in the state department which will be reviewed at the hearing on March 19.

paid the interest of those who were reporting it and in this respect Mr. Wilson's publicity sense, which was none too good as a whole, was especially effective.

Election night, 1912, was about as uninteresting and undramatic an occasion as it was important to the man who was the chief figure in it. Possibly it was that Mr. Wilson felt confident of the result and possibly it was Mr. Wilson's characteristic ability to disguise his true feelings. That were it not for the student body of Princeton university who came marching down to the little cottage on Cleveland Lane, a stone's throw from the house where Grover Cleveland lived and died, the incident might have passed into history without even a cheer of enthusiasm or a note of exultation of any kind.

To the modest little cottage on Cleveland Lane came the torch-light procession with life and drum, singing, yelling, and giving to the whole atmosphere more of the appearance of an athletic victory than a political celebration. Students in Princeton will parade anyhow on the slightest provocation and the fact that a graduate had been elected president of the United States gave them a thrilling excuse.

Down the same streets students had tripped in the days when General Washington received the thanks of the continental congress meeting at Nassau hall after the revolution. It was in the same environment that James Madison, another president of the United States, had lived. Recently—only five years before election night, 1912—the students had marched to the home of Grover Cleveland to greet him on the occasion of his seventieth birthday. The last president of the United States elected on the democratic ticket and the first democrat to be elected since then—both had been a vital part of Princeton.

Only a few persons were admitted to the Wilson cottage, mostly newspaper men who had accompanied the governor during his presidential campaign. Except for the ticking of a telegraph instrument in the library one would have believed it was a social evening in the Wilson home.

Surrounded by the students Woodrow Wilson made his first speech that night as the elected chief executive of the American people. It was an impromptu address but it paralleled strangely the words of his social and inauguration address more than four years later. He said then in 1912 what he said in 1916—he did not feel the thrill of triumph but a sense only of solemn responsibility.

Day by day we had our conferences with the president-elect. His answers to our questions were general—he was feeling his way. His first impulse was to get away from it all and think alone. This tendency, not unlike that of the artist who seeks solitude or the literary genius who locks himself in his study for uninterrupted thought, was noticeable on later occasions when Mr. Wilson was faced with a crisis. When the Lusitania was sunk, he shut himself off immediately from the hub and eye of war and detached himself from the fighting passion in the very atmosphere. Alone on the front seat of his automobile into the woods he fled to get a proper perspective on what had occurred.

Off to Bermuda, presumably on a vacation, went the president-elect as soon as elected, but the real purpose of the journey was to find a quiet place in which to think out a course of action. On the steamer en route to Bermuda and in the life of the Wilson household during the month's sojourn in the beautiful island section of Bermuda the Wilsons revealed themselves as truly democratic. They were innocently unaware of the burdens of officialdom.

All the correspondents who made the daily trip to the Wilson home found a delightful family circle—in fact one of the embarrassing fact of the newspaper man's viewpoint was the fact that Mr. Wilson accepted the correspondents as social visitors, then rather than as business callers. Many a visit which was begun by the approved object of getting news from the president-elect turned out in vain because the charm and attractiveness of the drawing room where Mr. Wilson, his wife and daughters participated in a discussion of everything except news. This effectively prevented the burden from conducting their usual cross-examination.

There is no doubt that Mrs. Wilson was the friendly of every one of the correspondents. On more than one occasion she smoothed out a difference between the newspaper men and her husband. She was their friend throughout and sympathized with them in the embarrassing duty of purgling a president-elect while he was trying to get a needed rest.

Mr. Wilson chose to keep the return of state—the beginnings of currency legislation.

Must Obtain Permit From State Railroad Commission

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Madison — Stock of a North Dakota land company is subject to the blue sky laws of Wisconsin and, before such stock can be sold in the state, the agent must obtain a permit from the state railroad commission. Deputy Attorney General Robert M. Moser held in an opinion to G. S. Canright, director of the securities division of the state railroad commission. The ruling was issued in connection with sale of stock by a Darlington firm.

NEW CONTRACTS

Madison — Fifty new contracts with tobacco growers in Jackson and Trempealeau counties were signed last week by officials of the Northern Tobacco Pool, according to pool headquarters here. The additions to the pool have come as a result of a campaign being carried on in the tobacco growing district, it is said.

"As regards the navy department Secretary Denby, I can say the same thing as I said about the other department. My personal acquaintance with Secretary Denby has on a very slight one. I have had business relations whatever with him, and I have never been interested in or connected with any contracts of any kind made by or through that department.

"The newspaper with which I am connected has carried some government advertising but, of course, it will be recognized that this a matter not handled by me personally.

No Oil Dealings

"I have never been interested in the purchase of any Sinclair or Denby oil stocks, directly or indirectly, which I mean that I have never made any deal in oil, nor have I had any interest in any such purchases made by any one at any time.

"The public press has repeatedly printed reports that the oil business was negotiating for immunity from prosecution in consideration of the disclosure by him of sensational reports have clearly indicated that the

The witness declared it was of little consequence whether light was furnished to the other plants or not, as several other plants in the time of the emergency. The attorney for the defense sought to bring out that the witness was not qualified to testify as to the value of the equipment, and, if necessary, to remove ladders from the burning building.

Touching High Tension

DR. JORDAN declared that he had not been possible to cut the high tension wires while the wires were still alive, declaring that under certain conditions he had touched a 6,600 volt line, and that he might not get killed, but that wire or might not get killed with much higher pressure line than 6,600 volts, declared the witness, "it all depends on the circumstances."

The defense then moved safely to the jury, intending to prove that only specially equipped and trained linemen are allowed to work on high ten-
